C. F. S. No. 4464

Created in 1849, the Department of the Interior--a department of conservation--is concerned with the management, conservation, and development of the Nation's water, fish, wildlife, mineral, forest, and park and recreational resources. It also has major responsibilities for Indian and Territorial affairs.

As the Nation's principal conservation agency, the Department works to assure that nonrenewable resources are developed and used wisely, that park and recreational resources are conserved for the future, and that renewable resources make their full contribution to the progress, prosperity, and security of the United States--now and in the future.

FOREWORD

This report has been prepared from Tariff Schedules of the United States Annotated and Schedule XX United States of America to provide information on results of the Sixth Round of Trade Negotiations, General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade as they affect fishery products. It provides ready reference in terms of the provisions of the Tariff Schedules of the United States to code classifications and descriptions, rates of duty on June 30, 1967, the final stage of duty resulting from the trade negotiations, and the volume and value of 1965 imports of selected fishery products. The report has been prepared solely as a source of information and for statistical purposes. It cannot be considered authority for determining proper classification of imports or the rate of duty properly chargeable upon any imported product. Questions relating to product classification should be referred to the Foreign Trade Division, Bureau of Census, Washington, D.C. 20233. Questions relating to proper classification of commodities for duty purposes should be referred to the Commissioner of Customs, Washington, D.C. 20226, or to the collector of customs or appraiser of merchandise at United States ports of entry.

GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TARIFFS AND TRADE

The United States and over 50 other member nations of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) concluded the largest and most comprehensive trade negotiations in history on May 15, 1967. Final results of the negotiations were formally approved in Geneva, Switzerland on June 30, 1967. United States participation was made possible through authority granted the President by the Congress through the Trade Expansion Act of 1962. The negotiations, known as the Kennedy Round in recognition of the late President's leadership in inaugurating the effort, formally opened in May, 1964.

United States tariff reductions will not enter into force until proclaimed by the President of the United States. It is expected that January 1, 1968 will be established as the effective date. Except for a few concessions that will become fully effective at that date, reductions will be put into effect in five equal stages. After the first stage is made effective, the others will go into effect at one-year intervals. Thus, the effect will be gradual, giving industry the opportunity to adjust to the changes brought about by tariff reductions.

The agreements apply to about $40 billion of world trade. In terms of 1966 trade, the United States give tariff cuts on about $7.5 to $8 billion of industrial and agricultural (including fish and shellfish) imports and is obtaining tariff concessions on about the same amount of United States exports.

The following pages list selected fishery items in terms of the Tariff Schedules of the United States Annotated. Duty-free and items not negotiated are shaded. A rate of duty followed by two asterisks means the full tariff cut will go into effect on the date proclaimed by the President. All other duty rates will generally be staged in five equal annual steps.
